Overview

According to a report by Bloomberg, the second half of 2025 could mark a turning point for China's solar sector, with installation rates expected to drop sharply after a policy-driven surge earlier this year. China's booming solar industry is facing mounting pressure as demand weakens and a wave of overcapacity threatens profitability for some of the world's largest manufacturers. According to a report by Bloomberg, the second half of 2025 could mark a turning point for China's solar sector, with. After enduring a harrowing earnings season, signs are emerging that China's solar industry may be on the cusp of recovery. The industry, dominated by giants like Longi Green Energy Technology Co and five other leading firms, has faced severe challenges due to a surge in factory constructions in. (Bloomberg) -- Chinese solar manufacturers are still heavily in the red, but investors are beginning to detect signs of progress in their battle against overcapacity. Four of the biggest panel makers reported first-half earnings on Friday, racking up a combined net loss of over 13 billion yuan. China's solar industry stands at a pivotal crossroads. For years, the sector has been a poster child for industrial overreach—explosive growth, aggressive price wars, and a relentless race to the bottom. But in 2025, a shift is underway. The Chinese government, through a combination of regulatory. The China Solar Container Market, valued at 12.45 billion in 2025, is expected to grow at a CAGR of 10.16% from 2026 to 2033, reaching 22.25 billion by 2033. This robust growth is fueled by rising demand, ongoing technological innovation, and the expanding range of applications across various. In 2024 China's clean energy investment was more than USD 625 billion, almost doubling since 2015. China also achieved its 2030 wind and solar capacity target in 2024, six years ahead of schedule. While renewable installations are set to continue, investment growth is expected to slow in 2025 and.
